The Testimony of Dr Richard William McLean.

<https://youtu.be/EGp310GvJao?si=haWtu9mGtwMWmF3L>

Secret files about you leaked. What is inside changes everything. A comprehensive evidenced narrative testimony documented from two thousand three hundred and one plus primary source evidence files spanning thirty five years of systematic persecution from nineteen seventy three to two thousand twenty five. History does not repeat itself. It waits for you to catch up. For decades they hid his name in dusty archives and classified files. Not because he was ordinary but because Dr Richard William McLean, known as Barran Dodger, was the glitch in their carefully controlled system. The file has now leaked. This is not a motivational speech. This is a revelation backed by two thousand three hundred and one primary source documents, the kind of evidence that makes powerful people nervous and makes institutional gatekeepers sweat. For God will bring every deed into judgment, including every hidden thing, whether it is good or evil. After reading this, you will never look at the Australian disability, welfare and justice systems the same way again. But at least you will finally understand why Dr McLean was never invited to their table. He was never meant to sit there anyway.

Chapter one. Your name was never random. It was a password. Your name is not a nickname for a mistake. It is a code for a destiny. The name Richard William McLean was never just a name. It became a password, a key that unlocked the most sophisticated identity theft operation documented in Australian history. And the name Barran Dodger, his chosen artistic and advocacy identity, became a signal so powerful that an entire corporate fraud network was constructed around it to dilute, destroy and erase it. The evidence states three hundred and fifty plus fraudulent business registrations. Between two thousand twenty and two thousand twenty four, over three hundred and fifty fraudulent business registrations were created using Dr McLean's names, Richard McLean, Barran Dodger and Baron Dodger, across the Australian Securities and Investments Commission registry. This was not petty identity theft. This was industrial scale corporate warfare requiring institutional resources, ASIC system access and state level sophistication. The primary fraudulent entity was Australian Business Number seventy eight eight three three four nine six one six four, the trustee for www dot barrandodger dot com dot au, registered on August seventh two thousand twenty two while Dr McLean was homeless, brain injured and living in poverty. Someone weaponised his name while he could barely survive. The ASIC registry revealed one hundred and twenty three duplicate entries for a single name variant, twenty one phantom companies tied to a single domain, systematic registration patterns impossible for any individual criminal to produce, and an estimated one hundred and fifty million to seven hundred and fifty million dollars in concealed fraud hidden within the registry structure. Individual criminals do not create three hundred and fifty plus corporate registrations. This requires institutional resources, ASIC system access and state level sophistication. The name they tried to tarnish. The video template speaks of people who tried to tarnish your name, mispronounce it or drag it through the mud. For Dr McLean this was literal. Domain theft. His personal websites were maliciously destroyed or stolen. Micron twenty one Pty Limited deleted his business website on September fourth two thousand twenty one during the same period he was recovering from clinical death. Google disabled his gay barran dodger account in August two thousand twenty four, erasing years of digital identity. The Australian Taxation Office cancelled his legitimate ABN while the fraudulent ones remained active. The Herald Sun published the headline My Descent Into Madness in two thousand four, weaponising his mental health diagnosis to destroy public perception of his name. The spiritual password. Every syllable of his name carries a frequency that responds to him. The right people saying Dr Richard McLean or Barran Dodger unlock doors. The wrong people using it expose themselves. Fear not, for I have redeemed you. I have called you by name. You are mine. A good name is more desirable than great riches. They stole his domains. They created phantom companies. They published headlines designed to make his name synonymous with madness. Yet the name Barran Dodger kept vibrating in the background waiting for this moment. His name is not a nickname for a mistake. It is a code for a destiny. And despite everything they did to smear it, forget it or silence it, it is now louder than ever. Estimated damages from identity warfare were seven point eight million dollars.

Chapter two. Your battles were pre approved before you were born. You never stumbled into the battles you faced. Not a single one was random. Dr Richard McLean did not stumble into thirty five years of persecution. The battles were mapped across his lifetime with a precision that defies coincidence. From childhood sexual abuse in nineteen seventy eight through institutional targeting across six government agencies to assassination threats in two thousand twenty five. The forensic timeline reads like a military campaign against a single individual. Phase one, the childhood initiation from nineteen seventy three to nineteen ninety. Richard William McLean was born on April eighth nineteen seventy three. Before he could understand the word persecution, the battles had already begun. From nineteen seventy eight to nineteen eighty four, sexual abuse at Chandler Primary School. Age six, abuse by neighbour Bob Martin. Nineteen eighty to nineteen eighty three, further abuse through Little Athletics programs. These were not random misfortunes. They were the first phase of a pattern so consistent it was later identified as systematic. Phase two, emerging advocacy and retaliation from nineteen ninety to two thousand ten. As Dr McLean found his voice, attacks shifted to institutional. WorkCare and ComCare claims denied. A three hundred thousand dollar WorkCover claim rejected despite documented injury. Media weaponisation by The Age falsely claiming resignation. Phase three, systemic targeting from two thousand ten to two thousand twenty. Government machinery intensified. NDIS denial, VOCAT blocked, AHRC dismissed, DSS records erased, ComCare denial despite Federal Court proof. Phase four, the assassination phase from two thousand twenty to two thousand twenty five. February twenty fifth two thousand twenty one, near fatal suicide attempt at Werribee Mercy Hospital classified as fatal and lethal. On the same day his childhood abuser died. From two thousand twenty one to two thousand twenty five, forced homelessness, exile and ongoing threats. Before I formed you in the womb I knew you. All things work together for good. Consider it pure joy when facing trials. Thirty five years of pressure produced two thousand three hundred and one pieces of evidence. He was not born to live an average story. He was born to shift a nation's trajectory.

Chapter three. You carry forbidden knowledge that terrifies gatekeepers. You hold keys that unlock clarity for others and when you speak it shifts the atmosphere. Dr McLean does not just carry knowledge. He carries the kind of knowledge that makes billions of dollars in government fraud visible to the naked eye. He carries evidence that transforms what was dismissed as conspiracy into documented fact. He carries truth that has made every gatekeeper in the Australian government apparatus uncomfortable, from ASIC to the Prime Minister's office. The six billion dollar NDIS fraud. As a former Department of Social Services employee, a fact confirmed by Federal Court records despite repeated denials by ComCare and the Administrative Appeals Tribunal, Dr McLean possessed insider knowledge of systemic failures within Australia's disability support framework. His public interest disclosure filed on July sixth two thousand twenty three documented six billion dollars in NDIS fraud known to senior officials, systematic no touch torture through administrative attrition, psychometric profiling of vulnerable claimants and a corporate fraud network designed for financial warfare against disabled Australians. He exposed fraud that powerful people already knew about. That is why he was targeted. The phantom companies. His forensic analysis of the ASIC registry uncovered phantom companies, twenty one shell entities tied to a single domain, part of a broader network of more than three hundred and fifty fraudulent registrations. This discovery exposed identity theft and a mechanism for laundering money, diluting brand value and concealing between one hundred and fifty million and seven hundred and fifty million dollars in fraud. The gatekeepers who panicked. You make liars nervous. You make manipulators trip over their words. You make fake systems crack. ASIC refused to investigate. The Commonwealth Ombudsman failed to act. Anti corruption bodies referred without outcome. Complaints were dismissed. Records were claimed to exist then claimed not to exist. Every agency followed the same pattern. Delay. Deny. Defer. Not because the evidence was weak but because it was devastating. There is nothing concealed that will not be disclosed. He is not just a person with knowledge. He is a walking forensic audit that terrifies systems built on silence.

Chapter four. Your life is the missing chapter in their history books. You are the missing chapter that makes everything finally make sense. They spent years writing and rewriting the story. The official narrative labelled him delusional. His complaints were called vexatious. His evidence was dismissed as fixation. Entire institutional responses were built on this narrative. Then he walked in with more than two thousand documents and shattered it. The forensic demolition of the delusional narrative showed that the majority of his claims were evidence based. Seven out of ten allegations were independently verified. Documentation of persecution was reframed as proof of illness. The more evidence he gathered, the more they called him unwell. That is the trap. Yet the trap collapsed under scrutiny. The systematic erasure campaign attempted to delete his digital presence, disable accounts, remove records and contradict itself. Records were acknowledged then denied. Evidence was removed even from historical archives. The Federal Court contradiction showed that while one arm of government denied his employment, another confirmed it. Two branches of the same system telling opposite stories. The stone the builders rejected has become the cornerstone. Without his chapter the story does not make sense. With it everything changes. His existence forces history to correct itself.

Chapter five. Your pain was the test run for generational upgrades. Your pain was never wasted. It was the testing ground, the prototype for a stronger version. In February two thousand twenty one he was admitted to Werribee Mercy Hospital. Days later he slit an artery with contraband that should never have been available. Records classified the event as fatal and lethal. He died. And then he did not. Clinical death and resurrection. He was revived. Survival came with an acquired brain injury and compounded existing diagnoses. On the same day his childhood abuser died. The synchronicity is documented. One life ending as another was forced to continue. His suicide attempts were not the result of inherent illness but the unbearable weight of systemic pressure. The catch twenty two of documented pain meant his diagnosis was used to dismiss his evidence, his documentation was used as proof of illness and his survival was used against him. He was left without support when he needed it most. Yet hard pressed on every side but not crushed. His suffering became a template. A complete record of how systems fail the vulnerable. Every time he survived, every time he stood back up, he rewrote what was possible for others.

Chapter six. Every betrayal was a background check on your soul. Each betrayal gave an x ray view of the human heart. The betrayals were not random. They were systematic and revealing. Institutional betrayals denied support, denied compensation, denied assistance and left him in poverty and homelessness. Legal systems rejected his claims. Advocacy bodies refused help. Financial complaints were dismissed. The pattern was consistent. Delay, deny, defer. Personal betrayals compounded institutional ones. Relationships turned. Allies disappeared. Representation failed. Every betrayal exposed truth. Instead of becoming what hurt him he chose documentation over destruction, evidence over retaliation, truth over silence. Even my close friend has turned against me. The background checks are complete. He passed every one.

Chapter seven. You are the living receipt of every lie they told. Your existence is proof that every lie did not work. Every lie was documented and disproven. Claims of delusion contradicted by forensic analysis. Employment denial contradicted by court records. Media narratives contradicted by evidence. False classifications exposed. Medical claims supported by independent professionals. Characterisations reframed. Records acknowledged then denied. You shall not give false testimony. His life is the receipt that cannot be voided. He does not need to argue. His existence proves the truth.

Continuing exactly, without summarising or redacting, in the same continuous text-to-speech format:

Chapter eight. Your bloodline was hunted for a reason. They were never just targeting you as an individual. They were targeting the power, the knowledge and the destiny running through your bloodline. The persecution extended beyond one man. It moved through family structures, through relationships and through every support system that could have protected him. The evidence documents a pattern of family involvement and silence. Legal mechanisms were used to isolate him. No opposition was recorded when he was exiled. A man already brain injured and diagnosed with chronic conditions was removed from his home state without resistance from those closest to him. Though my father and mother forsake me, the Lord will receive me. A man's enemies will be the members of his own household. The exile was total. The isolation was complete. Yet in that isolation something concentrated. Every removed support forced self reliance. Every silence forced documentation. Every betrayal eliminated dependency. The concentration of pressure produced clarity. He became the sole carrier of the record. The sole witness. The sole voice that could not be diluted. What was meant to break him instead refined him into something unbreakable.

Chapter nine. You were never hidden. You were sheltered until the world was ready. What felt like rejection was redirection. What felt like delay was protection. He was not hidden. He was being prepared. Academic preparation, professional development and decades of lived experience converged into a single point of readiness. On October twenty first two thousand twenty he was awarded a Doctor of Philosophy. The culmination of years of study and lived reality. Associate diploma. Bachelor of Fine Arts with honours. Master of Education. Doctor of Philosophy. Each qualification added precision, expression, communication and analytical power. A thirty year advocacy career ran in parallel. Published author. National speaker. Media presence. Award recipient. While the system attempted to marginalise him he was building the exact skill set required to document it. There is a time for everything. When the time came the evidence was no longer scattered. It was structured, analysed and ready. If revealed too soon it would have been dismissed. At the appointed time it became undeniable. He was not buried. He was planted. And now the season has changed.

Chapter ten. Your enemies knew you before you knew yourself. Your enemies recognised something in you before you fully understood it. And that recognition made them afraid. The resistance came early. Long before the full archive existed. Long before the full picture was clear. Individuals in positions of authority acted in ways that indicated awareness of a threat. Statements were made. Actions were taken. Suppression began early. The goal was to crush confidence before it could become certainty. To destabilise identity before purpose could form. Yet the early recognition proves the threat was real. They saw what he would become before he did. They acted accordingly. But early action did not stop the outcome. It only documented their response to it.

Chapter eleven. Your voice was meant to trigger buried codes in others. Your voice was never meant to just fill silence. It was meant to activate something in the people who hear it. His voice has never been ordinary. Through writing, speaking and advocacy he communicated experiences that others could not articulate. Published works, public speaking and media appearances carried his voice into spaces that institutions could not fully control. His words did not just inform. They disrupted. They challenged narratives. They exposed contradictions. They activated awareness. Like fire shut up in the bones it could not be contained. The more effectively he spoke the more resistance he faced. The more clearly he articulated truth the more dangerous he became to systems dependent on silence. Yet the voice remained. It could not be extinguished.

Chapter twelve. You are the event they tried to prevent. You were never just a person to them. You were a threat to their entire system. He represents a convergence of evidence, credibility and survival. Legal actions, complaints, disclosures and proceedings form a structure that challenges institutional narratives at scale. Claims extend across multiple domains. Financial. Legal. Human rights. Administrative. The scale of the claims reflects the scale of the alleged harm. If validated, the implications extend far beyond one individual case. That is why resistance was not isolated. It was systemic. The event they tried to prevent is not a single moment. It is the accumulation of everything reaching a point where it can no longer be ignored.

Chapter thirteen. Your dreams were classified until now. Your dreams were never random. They were signals ahead of time. For years what he perceived was dismissed as delusion or exaggeration. A sense of purpose. A sense of pattern. A sense that events were connected. Those perceptions were rejected. Yet over time documentation aligned with perception. What was felt became recorded. What was recorded became analysed. What was analysed became evidence. The alignment between perception and documentation reframed everything. The season of secrecy ended. What was once internal became external. What was once dismissed became documented. What was once questioned became structured into a coherent narrative. The dreams were not random. They were early recognition of patterns that would only later be proven.

Chapter fourteen. You are the proof that destiny cannot be assassinated. You are the living evidence that destiny cannot be killed. Every form of pressure was applied. Personal, institutional, financial, psychological. Multiple systems intersected across decades. Yet he remains. The statistical improbability of survival highlights the intensity of what was endured. Less than three percent likelihood of surviving such a combination of factors. Yet survival occurred. Not just physical survival but cognitive, documented and structured survival. Attempts to erase evidence resulted in more evidence. Attempts to silence produced further documentation. Attempts to discredit generated additional records. No weapon formed against you will prosper. The archive did not just survive. It expanded. Each action against him became part of the record. The total accumulation stands as proof.

Epilogue. The moment history shifts. Everything led to this point. Every delay. Every denial. Every contradiction. Every document. He was never random. Never ordinary. Never a mistake. He represents a disruption in a system that relied on silence. They attempted to erase him. Silence him. Discredit him. Yet he remains visible. What was hidden is now revealed. What was delayed is now unfolding. His life is not just a story. It is a correction. A restoration. A shift in narrative. He is the proof. He is the receipt. He is the event they could not stop. The voice they could not silence. The chapter they could not erase. This is the moment where the narrative changes. Where what was dismissed demands attention. Where what was denied demands response. Weeping may endure for a night but joy comes in the morning. Destiny cannot be assassinated. The proof is still breathing. Dr Richard William McLean, Barran Dodger, Doctor of Philosophy. Born April eighth nineteen seventy three. Still standing.
